Perhaps this Year there will be Room?

And [Mary] gave birth to her firstborn son and wrapped him in swaddling cloths and laid him in a manger, because there was no place for them in the inn. - Luke 2:7

It's such a familiar part of the Christmas story that we often have romanticized the realities went along with Joseph and Mary's inability to find proper housing on that first Christmas Eve. We have so easily forgotten the anxieties that come with first time expectant parents. As they approached Bethlehem it must have become obvious that the city was absolutely full of people. The census that had brought everyone here all at once had been at one and the same time a great burden on the people, and a cause for joy and celebration. Throughout the city, impromptu family reunions were taking place. Relatives who hadn't seen each other for years, if ever, were gathering in homes for special meals. As one walked through the streets that evening the city would have been filled with the sounds of gathered families. Songs were sung, toasts were made, there was laughter, and probably more than a few boisterous arguments. No one knew that it was Christmas, and yet in many ways, all the joys and stresses of Christmas were already there.

Just like Christmas is today, there was more than enough on everyone's minds just worrying about family and friends and their own business. That night was a night for family, and while the people of Bethlehem knew that it was their duty to care for the sojourners, the poor, and anyone in need, there would be other days for that. This night was for family and friends. It is no wonder that the best housing Mary and Joseph could find was a barn. On this night, and others to come, they were homeless. It's not that the people didn't care. Oh, they cared--it's just that this night was reserved for other purposes. How lonely must that have been? To be in a city filled with festivities and joy and find one's self relegated to the barn. Can you imagine the stress Joseph must have felt just trying to care for and protect his young bride?

And so, on that first Christmas Eve, the world turned its back on God. Certainly, they were singing hymns and saying prayers. There was much thanks poured towards the heavens. The stories of Moses, David, and the prophets were told countless times. God was not far from anyone's mind. It's just that really, God had become an accessory to the celebration. God was not far from anyone's mind--and yet Joseph and his very pregnant wife were left in the cold of a stable, left to share a bed with the livestock.

Oh, but the people didn't know, they didn't know that it was the very Mother of God who was sent to the stable. If only they had known... If they had known that it was the Messiah who was about to be born, they would have made space in their homes, made space at the table, made space in the celebration. If they had known that it was God--the son of God in their midst, they would have given up their own beds and slept in the stable themselves, if need be. Oh, what the people of Bethlehem would have done differently if they had only known. But they didn't know, and there was so much going on, and there would always be other days to care for the sojourners, other days to care for those in need.

I think that is the point though, isn't it? They did know that at least this one family, probably others as well, were in need of safe shelter. If they had taken a moment to place themselves in the sandals of this expectant father and mother, they could have seen just how scary it would be to sleep in a barn with a pregnant woman ready to give birth. If they had only used their imaginations, they would have seen just how painful the loneliness would be for a family all alone, surrounded by others who are celebrating.

Then they also will answer, saying, 'Lord, when did we see you hungry or thirsty or a stranger or naked or sick or in prison, and did not minister to you?' Then he will answer them, saying, 'Truly, I say to you, as you did not do it to one of the least of these, you did not do it to me.'
- Matthew 25:44-45

It is a rare thing when we find ourselves facing nearly the same choices that people in the Bible faced. This Christmas we have a deep privilege. This Christmas we have the opportunity to welcome God into Calvary Lutheran Church as a guest. This Christmas we find ourselves in the very same position that the people of Bethlehem found themselves in, more than 2,000 years ago. How will we respond? We will not leave Our Lord to sleep in a car on Christmas eve. We will not abandon Our Savior to some small and lonely motel room. This Christmas we will welcome the King of Kings into Calvary Lutheran Church and say, "Please make yourself at home." I can think of few honors greater than this, to welcome families in need of shelter into a safe place to sleep, eat, rest, and celebrate on the night that we recognize that our Savior was left homeless in a barn.

The week of Christmas, Calvary Lutheran, with some help from our friends at Beth Shalom, has the distinct privilege hosting Family Promise guests in our building. One or more families will be with us Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. It is a hardship to host the week of Christmas. There is so much going on. There are parties, and family, and turkeys and presents. There is shopping, and traveling. And won't we always have poor people to care for on other days? This week is about family, isn't it?

Oh, what the people of Bethlehem would have done differently, if only they had known...

We will need people willing to cook for guests the week of Christmas. We will need people to decorate the guest rooms with trees and lights and love. We will need people to set-up the Sunday before Christmas, and we will need people willing to spend their evenings and their nights hosting during the week of Christmas. Yes, even Christmas Eve and Christmas Night we will need a couple of people willing to sleep at Church. Perhaps you have never helped with Family Promise before: Can you think of a better time to start? What a memory to create in the lives of your children when you read them to sleep with the Christmas Story while spending the night at Church so that families need not be homeless. Christmas will never be the same again!

Blessings, Pastor Matt

(If you would like to find out how you can help with the hosting of Family Promise the week of Christmas, please contact Pastor Matt ASAP. Individuals who would like to host and interact with guests need to be trained in advance. This can be done very easily with just a little advance notice. There is no training necessary to help with decorating, set-up, meal preparation, or clean-up. Helping with Family Promise is a life-changing experience for children--and families are encouraged to find out how they can serve as an entire family.

Good Gifts to Missions

Often as we plan for the holiday season, we tend to think not only of giving gifts and remembering those who are close to us, but also our 'neighbors' who are less fortunate than we are. It is a time of giving and a time of compassion as we reflect on the birth of Jesus, God's gift to us.

The Missions Team is planning a few opportunities for giving in ways to make a true difference in the lives of God's children in other countries.

Throughout the Advent season, we will have the opportunity to give to support the ELCA "Good Gifts." Our children, including our preschool, especially enjoy this opportunity to turn coin they collect into pigs, chickens, sheep and goats to be gifted to families far away as a means to lift them out of poverty.

On December 4TH we will have a "Good Gifts" Sunday. During our fellowship hour, we will have the opportunity to buy gifts made far away and sold here with little 'overhead' to directly benefit the women who make the goods. Again we will have items made by the girls at Peace Rehabilitation Center, one of our mission partners in Nepal.

We have also invited Kristin Wilkerson who represents Trades of Hope. She will have a variety of nice gifts made by women all over the world. Each gift has a tag on it tell a bit about the origin of the item. You can read about this organization, the work they do, as well as get a preview of the items that will be offered by going on line to mytradesofhope.com.

We are selling raffle tickets for a Christmas quilt, and the tickets will be $5.00 each, to support Steve and Alene Burgert, one of our mission partners serving in Kenya. Please see Cory English, Kathy Darrar (or Jeanne in the office) for tickets.

“This year we celebrate 70 years of camp ministry, and as we do, we thank God for seven decades of faithful donors like you at Calvary who understand the importance of investing in Lutherhaven. Your gifts help to ensure that every child—regardless of age, hometown or family’s financial status—gets to come to a life-changing week of Bible camp...and join the Lutherhaven ‘diaspora’, or ‘a scattered population whose origin is in or at a smaller geographic locale.’

Lutherhaven’s Idaho Servant Adventures was an exhibitor in New Orleans and Detroit—at National Youth Gatherings, and representatives asked the leaders and kids who walked by the booth, where they served Jesus. Pins appeared on the map, and so many had heard of Shoshone camp, and had begun their ministry from there:

Four generations of ‘scattered’ campers, living out their life and faith in the love of Jesus...with roots intertwinning back to their camp on the shoulders of Mica Bay! “

See our Good Gifts fair...and buy from artisans from Nepal and elsewhere:

Early in December, we will have the Good Gifts Fair at Calvary, with lovely hand-made goods on display for you to purchase. The sale of these items is part of Trades of Hope, where we can empower women and help them get out of poverty!

There are hand knit colorful hats made by the Nepalese women at Peace Rehabilitation, the wool is especially soft and warm.

I saw finger puppets that were so cleverly done from fine wool, with little colorful pigs, chickens, llamas, striped cats with tails and whiskers, as well as a horse with a bridle sewn on!

Other crafts are jewelry from Haiti, Uganda, Philippines—and lovely, soft and colorful scarves of such fine fabric: We are hoping to be able to help these women so it can change their lives and situations.

You can be a hostess for Trades of Hope, or even a Compassionate Entrepreneur—a career that promises to feed your soul! You can sell the Fair Trade products through home, online, and at catalog parties and events. Our Compassionate Entrepreneur is Kristin Wilkinson, and you can reach her through kw4hope@gmail.com, or 509-688-5638. You will be blessed to be part of this ministry, and by knowing that your purchases (or sales) make a difference.

Family Promise®

During the week before Christmas, we will be hosting the families of Family Promise (so far there is only one family in need of housing, Praises for that) through the Christmas weekend and over Sunday, Christmas Day. Please make it a memorable one for these people who are already struggling. That means they will be here, in-house during our special Christmas Eve services, and our touching Christmas Sunday service. Be a blessing and bless them while they 'live under our roof'!

Family Promise of North Idaho is an affiliate of Family Promise® which was created in 1986 in response to the growing need to provide shelter, meals, and comprehensive support to families without homes. They are a nonsectarian charity and welcome all clients who meet the eligibility and admission requirements. Their staff and board of trustees work together with the interfaith and community partners to extend support to the homeless families in North Idaho.

Calvary has been an interfaith partner for a few years now, and we have seen many families and heard many heartwarming, touching stories. Help us help them this Christmas season!

Calvary Companions news:

Calvary helps the seniors at Orchard Ridge, by supplying them with baskets of goodies that they can use in their everyday lives. On page 6 of this newsletter, under Heritage Place, is a list of the things that our elder population living at the Village at Orchard Ridge could use to brighten their Christmas! If you can help, bring the items into the office or put them in a box in the Fellowship Hall—-we need to have the baskets there by December 15th, so bring them by As Soon As Possible. Bless you as you bless others,

Pamela Arnold and the Calvary Companions

CHILDRENS CHURCH

Kids, Christ and Christmas

We all know that kids and Christmas go together. And we know that Christ is the reason for celebrating Christmas. But, I was thinking that there is also a deeper reason for the significance of “Kids, Christ and Christmas”. Imagine the stable scene on the night in which Christ was born.... Imagine the wonder of what that gathering must have looked like.....

Imagine the simplicity and the sounds.....I believe that kids whether they are experiencing Christmas for the first time or not have a sense of wonder during the Christmas season. Kid’s faces light up at the simple mention of Jesus’s birth. Their faces light up each day in December opening a “window” on the Advent Calendar. I love to see their faces light up when Jesus’s birthday is nearing.

The simple things sometimes have the most meaning. Just like the night in which he was born. A simple birth, in a simple stable to a simple couple has had a profound meaning on our lives and many others.

Kids, Christ and Christmas.....I look forward to seeing the awe and wonder in their eyes as it is a constant reminder to me that Christ is Christmas.

*Many Blessings,
Kathy Darrar*

CALVARY NEWS

CARING AND FELLOWSHIP:

Calvary's Caring and Fellowship Team members give a great big "Thank you!" to all the members and friends who helped with our annual Thanksgiving Dinner on the Sunday before Thanksgiving. It certainly was an enjoyable event, wasn't it? We enjoyed scrumptious food and meaningful fellowship with members and friends of Calvary. We give an extra loud "shout out" to our turkey roasters, Dennis Wilson, Jimmy Steeled, and Kevin McGrath. They did a great job of roasting those large turkeys and making that tasty gravy. And they were there at the church at 5:00 am on that Sunday to begin their work. Thanks, Guys. Thank you also to all those who brought dishes to share. They were all delicious! Thanks to all who helped with table set up, to those who set out the food, and to those who cleaned up afterwards. We appreciate you all. And we hope that your actual Thanksgiving Day was also meaningful for you.

The Team will be providing Cookies and Coffee for the Mothers and other Caregivers of our Calvary Preschoolers on Tuesday, December 6, which will be the day of the Good Gifts Fair at Calvary Preschool. The Preschool "Good Gifts" Fair will be similar to "Good Gifts" Sunday, which happens two days before the Preschool Fair. Preschoolers and their parents and caregivers will be given opportunity to provide for those less fortunate in other parts of our world.

Also, Caring and Fellowship Team soon will be putting out sign-up sheets for bringing cookies for our congregational fellowship time on Christmas Eve. With that in mind, we wish you a Blessed Christmas.

Blessings, Pamela Arnold
